

SOME QUESTIONS.

The APPEAL would like to ask the Enterprise some questions about the reconstruction amendments.

The two people who are now making the most violent outcry against the confirmation of Lamar, are Whitelaw Reid, of the New York Tribune, and Hon. W. M. Evarts.

Mr. Taggart, the present editor of the Enterprise, has for many years been connected with the New York Tribune.

Does he recollect the mass meeting at Cooper Institute on the night of January 11th, 1875, where Whitelaw Reid and W. M. Evarts were in company with John Kelly, chief of Tammany Hall, and August Schell, of the National Democratic Committee, loudly protesting against the enforcement by U. S. Grant of the very constitutional amendments which they are now claiming Lamar does not uphold?

At that meeting Evarts made a very inflammatory speech against the amendments, and a suggestion to hang U. S. Grant was received with "tremendous applause."

If the editor of the Enterprise has forgotten the Cooper Hall meeting we respectfully suggest that he turn to the back files of the New York Tribune of January 15th, 1875, or any other reputable New York paper of that date.

HARDLY POSSIBLE.

The rumor that C. C. Powning will secure a nomination for Congress next Fall does not seem hardly in the order of things. He will have to go before the Democratic Convention against George Cassidy one of the shrewdest convention manipulators in the State. Cassidy will come in with the great East solid, all of Ormsby and a part of Storey. While Powning can only depend on a part of Washoe and a few votes in Esmeralda and Lyon and four or five in Storey.

While Powning's services for the Democratic party perhaps entitles him to a nomination, he has not been quite such a war horse as Cassidy. Fair's influence would be for Powning, but it would cost so much to nominate him that we hardly think he would care to part with the shekles. However it is none of our fight anyhow.

Going to Make Horax.

"The real scheme behind that Owens Lake move and the Carson and Colorado Railroad," said John Forsythe of Death Valley, yesterday, "is not to irrigate Death valley with the water of the lake, but to get out the soda that is in the water. This alone is a great enterprise. The irrigation scheme is as yet impracticable, unless H. M. Yerington and the rest of the railroad people have millions to spend, for Death valley is forty or fifty miles from the lake, and to get the water through they would have to tunnel a long distance through the White mountains which lie between."

"As to the soda, even with the crude appliances which they have they are making a large sum of money every year. Why, they often have as much as fifty or sixty tons of soda at a time lying at Keeler, the terminus of the railroad. They have been for three years getting out the soda, and now they are going for it on a more extensive scale. They have, since 1884, located all the land around the lake, so they have a soft time of it—everything to their hand."

"Hitherto they have been evaporating the water from the soda by first pumping the former, by the aid of a small engine, through a pipe into a trench about a foot deep, 100 feet wide and 200 or 300 feet long. The sun is boiling hot there, Summer or Winter, and soon evaporates the water, leaving a large amount of pure borate of soda in the bottom. This they scoop up as it is, and it is ready for the market. About a half dozen men have heretofore been employed the year round in getting out the soda. Now, having secured all the land and got control of the lake, they are going into the soda manufacturing business extensively.—Examiner.
